Q3. Give one example of a joint family member other than parents and siblings.

Ans: Grandparents, uncles, or aunts.

Short Answer Questions

Q4. How do neighbours help each other in a community?

Ans: Neighbours may help by lending things in an emergency, looking out for each other's homes, celebrating festivals together, and supporting one another in difficult times.

Q5. What is one difference between how a small family and a large joint family might share daily chores?

Ans: In a small family, the few members share all chores among themselves; in a large joint family, chores can be divided among many more people, so each person may do less.

Higher-Order Thinking Question

Q6. Why might living in a community be helpful during a difficult time, like an illness in the family?

Ans: During difficult times, community members can share responsibilities like bringing food, helping with errands, or offering emotional support, making a hard situation easier to manage than facing it completely alone.
