Class 4 EVS Chapter 9 – Solutions and Revision Notes

Homes and livelihoods change with geography, and Class 4 EVS Chapter 9 shows how sloped roofs suit heavy-rainfall regions while fishing sustains coastal communities — these questions explore why people live differently across different lands.

Very Short Answer Questions

Q1. Name one type of region mentioned where people live differently, such as due to climate.

Ans: Answers vary; example: desert, mountain, or coastal region.

Q2. What kind of homes might people build in heavy rainfall regions?

Ans: Homes with sloped roofs, to let water run off easily.

Q3. Name one livelihood common in coastal communities.

Ans: Fishing.

Short Answer Questions

Q4. Why do houses look different in different parts of the country?

Ans: Houses are built using locally available materials and designed to suit the local climate, so their appearance changes from region to region.

Q5. How does climate affect the kind of work people do in an area?

Ans: People often take up work suited to local resources — for example, mountain communities may grow crops suited to slopes, while desert communities may herd animals that need little water.

Higher-Order Thinking Question

Q6. Despite living very differently, what basic needs do people across different lands usually share?

Ans: Despite different surroundings and lifestyles, people everywhere generally share basic needs like food, shelter, family, and community.
